

Download After The Event From Accident To Organisational Learning

Even in well-designed and well-developed management arrangements there is still the challenge of ensuring that all requirements are complied with consistently. After an accident or case of ill health, many organisations find they already had systems, rules, procedures or instructions that would have avoided the incident. Following the Public Enquiry into avoidable deaths and poor standards of care at Mid Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust, the English National Health Service (NHS) is aiming to become a system devoted to continual learning and improvement of patient care.
