The Civil War profoundly shaped the United States as we know it today. Nevertheless, the war remains one of the most misunderstood events in American history. Here are ten basic facts you need to know about America's defining struggle. Fact #1: The Civil War was fought between the Northern and the Southern states from 1861-1865. The Civil War was the bloodiest war ever fought on American soil. During an average day during the war, approximately 600 people were killed. By the end of the war, over 618,000 people had died. This is more Americans than WWI, WWII, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War combined. Civil War facts reveal that the American Civil War is considered to be the first modern war in human history, since many advanced warfare machinery and techniques were used for the first time. This advanced warfare included the use of mines, rapid fire weapons, rifles, submarines, railroads, ironclad ships, aerial observation and also telegraphs and telecommunication for military intelligence.
