In the middle of the nineteenth century, British archeologist Austen Henry Layard uncovered parts of several ancient Assyrian cities buried beneath the earth, including the capital of the Neo-Assyrian Empire, Nineveh. Nineveh was one of the greatest cities of its time and was an important religious center around 3000 BC. However, the city was sacked in 612 BC, and its citizens were either deported or murdered. From that time forward, the city remained unoccupied, until Layard's excavation ... Nineveh and Its Remains: The Gripping Journals of the Man Who Discovered the Buried Assyrian Cities eBook: Austen Henry Layard: Amazon.co.uk: Kindle Store
