Riken Institute was founded in 1917. The photo paper manufacturing division of the institute became an independent company in 1936. The very next year, this company bought Olympic Camera manufacturer, and began manufacturing its own cameras. In parallel, Riken Kōgaku Kōgyō gradually took over the distribution of the cameras made by Asahi Kōgaku Kōgyō. The Olympic Camera Club established by Asahi was turned into the Ricoh Camera Club (????????), and its magazine Shinkō Graph (????) was taken over by the parent company. Riken also sold cameras made ... The SLX 500 is an SLR for 35mm film from Ricoh which accepts 42mm screw-mount lenses.
